Nick Percival is one of the country's most respected cosmetic surgeons.

Having spent 20 years as a consultant plastic surgeon at the Charing Cross Hospital in London, Nick went into full time private practice in central London in 2006. He then went on to form Cosmetic Surgery Partners with his colleagues Dai Davies and Miles Berry. He is a long time member of the BAPRAS and BAAPS having also served as a member of the council.

Nick is one of the first surgeons in the UK to incorporate non-surgical techniques including lasers, chemical peels and injectables into his surgical practice. He has also lectured widely on the holistic approach to the treatment of facial aging.

Nick was born in Yorkshire and studied as an undergraduate at University College Hospital in London and taught at Stamford University, California before embarking on a training programme in plastic surgery in London, South Wales and Edinburgh.

He was placed on the GMC Specialist Register in 1992. Whilst undertaking all types of cosmetic surgery procedures, he has developed a special interest in facial rejuvenation including browlifting, blepharoplasty, facelifts and rhinoplasty.

He teaches cosmetic surgery techniques to trainees at the Royal College of Surgeons of England and is frequently quoted in the press on cosmetic surgery issues. He lectures both in the UK and abroad, and has spoken at the prestigious Oxford Union.
